Martin decides that this Sunday, they're going to travel the world.
Help him and Maize find their way to adventure!

Draw Your Imaginary World

In SUNDAY, Martin figures out a way to turn ordinary objects into amazing adventures! A t-shirt flapping on a clothesline became a pirate ship flag in a storm and a face became a hilly, sandy desert.

Draw or make a collage of what wild adventure your objects could help take you on.

Invite A Buddy

Who would you invite on an adventure? Write them an invitation.

An invitation usually includes a picture related to the event, a description of the event, and why the person is being invited.

Think of at least three places you'll go on this adventure and describe each of them.

Include why you think your friend would be a great travel buddy for this journey.

Then, draw a picture that represents the adventure you've just described.

(And it's OK if, like Maize in the book, your buddy can't read. After all, you can always read the invitation to them!)
